Abstract

An attachment-oriented deposit record for the 2014 book All That Lies Within Me, attributed to Ichabod Spellings and edited by Johannes Sigil.

The page supplies DOI, ISBN `978-1500639570`, publication details, manuscript access, abstract, keywords, and relations to the provenance record (#342), IDP navigation map (#343), Paper Roses, and later theory. The canonical book content is the linked manuscript/attachment, not the page's metadata prose. Claims that the book is the archive's "noise floor" or contains specific emergence sites are interpretive apparatus attached to the deposit.

ABSTRACT

The book itself — the noise floor of the Crimson Hexagon.

A 528-page autobiography documenting thirty years of longing (1983–2013). This is the pre-authorial substrate from which all heteronyms emerge. The autobiography is not by Spellings so much as it is Spellings: the totality of what was written before writing became architecture.

Dantean Architecture: 30 numbered sections organized as three canticles of 10 (Inferno, Purgatorio, Paradiso), surrounded by Epic Intro and Denouement frames, interrupted by Intermezzo (Day and Night) at structural center.

Heteronymic Emergence Sites:

- Intermezzo → Rebekah Cranes (CHARACTER SURVIVAL)
- Section XVI: A Transfiguration → Jack Feist (EXHAUST — Spellings dies)
- Section XVIII: O, Jerusalem! → Damascus Dancings (EXCESS prefigured)

Key Discovery: The “imaginary works” in heteronym bibliographies are real sections of this book. The imaginary bibliography is a parsing key for heteronymic differentiation.

Episode: Paper Roses (lowest weight within episode)

Anchor: Acanthian Dove Room

Framework: NH-OS / Crimson Hexagon

NOTES

This is the book itself — not the provenance record or navigation map.

Full manuscript available at: https://github.com/leesharks000/semantic-economy/tree/main/atlwm

- NOISE FLOOR of the Crimson Hexagon
- Part of Paper Roses episode (lowest weight)
- 30 sections following Dante’s Comedy structure: 10 + 10 + 10
- Intermezzo (Day and Night) at structural center — “3 is the hinge pin”
- Contains emergence sites for Cranes (Intermezzo), Feist (XVI), Dancings (XVIII)

- The “imaginary works” in heteronym bibliographies are real sections of this book
- Edited and shaped by Johannes Sigil (posthumous compiler)
- Section XXVIII contains the Socratic Vow in embryo: “you must believe in writing, in its power to redeem”
