Abstract

The twenty-ninth seating of the originals shelf, eleven seats. Kerouac declared; Horace and Ovid in Latin. Sixty-four arts of poetry in twenty traditions, from Bharata, the Great Preface and Lu Ji to Mayakovsky, Hagiwara and Bialik, with Sigil's 'Tradition and the Individual Seismograph' beside Eliot's essay. The avant-garde's statements of method, 1913–1929, and the arts of poetry still wanted. Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose in its 2014 drafts, the book and the blog, with Make It Human, A Telepathicist Manifesto and the critical edition. And the Buddhist canons: the Pali Tipiṭaka complete; the Mahāyāna sūtras and śāstras in Sanskrit; the Chinese canon with Chan, the Tannishō, Hakuin and Han Yong-un; and the Derge Kangyur in Tibetan.

EA-CORPORA-29 — The Twenty-Ninth Seating

The seating began with Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose: A Critical Edition (#1715), whose apparatus asked for Kerouac's list (declared, 29/01) and Horace's Ars Poetica (29/02). The author then asked for "an extremely pluriform ars poetica bundle to gather with the others for the next ea-corpora. include telepathic prose", for Ovid entire, for Language writing and the contemporary arts of poetry as wanted, for the experimental, Dada and Surrealist statements of method, and for the bundle to go "further globally, hebrew, sanskrit, korean - this will be the single widest ranging ea corpora deposit", with "Tradition and the Individual Seismograph" beside Eliot's essay. Gathering it for deposit, he widened it once more: "lets just make it a totally pluriform bundled ea-corpora - we need buddhist canon, various traditions, mahayana included."

Eleven seats. The arts of poetry run from the Nāṭyaśāstra and the Great Preface to the Odes through Mayakovsky, Hagiwara and Bialik, in twenty traditions, beside the avant-garde's statements of method and the archive's own art of poetry in all its witnesses. The wanted list names what the shelf cannot hold yet, and when each opens. The Buddhist seats set one canon in its several languages. The Pali Tipiṭaka is seated complete, the harvest the Dhammapada seat queued (02/17). The Mahāyāna sūtras and śāstras come in Sanskrit. The Chinese canon comes with Chan, Japan and Korea. The Derge Kangyur gives the same sūtras in Tibetan, so that the Lotus, the Diamond, the Heart and the Vimalakīrti stand on the shelf in Sanskrit, Chinese and Tibetan at once.

Seat 29/01 — Jack Kerouac

A declared absence: the statements of method, the novels and Mexico City Blues

- Works: none held; the seat is a declared absence (no works held; 14 declared)
- Licence: The declaration is the archive's own, CC-BY-4.0. The works it names are not held.
- Lines: 0 in 0 text files (0 works)
- Normalization: None: the declaration is held as written.
- Scope: Declared, not seated: Jack Kerouac, The Town and the City (Harcourt, Brace, 1950), opens: 2046-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Essentials of Spontaneous Prose, in Black Mountain Review 7 (Black Mountain College, 1957), opens: 2053-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, On the Road (Viking Press, 1957), opens: 2053-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, The Subterraneans (Grove Press, 1958), opens: 2054-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, The Dharma Bums (Viking Press, 1958), opens: 2054-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Essentials of Spontaneous Prose, in Evergreen Review 2.5 (Grove Press, 1958), opens: 2054-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Belief & Technique for Modern Prose: List of Essentials, in Evergreen Review 2.8 (Grove Press, 1959), opens: 2055-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Doctor Sax (Grove Press, 1959), opens: 2055-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Mexico City Blues (Grove Press, 1959), opens: 2055-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Book of Dreams (City Lights, 1961), opens: 2057-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Big Sur (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, 1962), opens: 2058-01-01 if its copyright was renewed (a United States work published before 1964 needed renewal; the renewal is to be checked); Jack Kerouac, Visions of Cody (McGraw-Hill, 1972), opens: 2068-01-01; Jack Kerouac, Selected Letters, 1957–1969, ed. Ann Charters (the letter of 1958 to Donald Allen) (Viking, 1999), opens: 2040-01-01, seventy years after the author's death, for matter first published after 1977; the editor's apparatus under its own terms; Jack Kerouac, On the Road: The Original Scroll, ed. Howard Cunnell (Viking, 2007), opens: 2040-01-01, seventy years after the author's death; the editors' apparatus under its own terms. Wanted: the two statements of method first, in their first printings (Black Mountain Review 7, 1957; Evergreen Review 2.5, 1958, and 2.8, 1959), and the 1958 letter to Donald Allen in which the list was written; the renewal record of each work published before 1964, which decides when it opens. Until then the shelf describes the list and cites it by item number (Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose: A Critical Edition, §7).

- Why seated: Jack Kerouac (1922–1969) is entered as wanted, at the operator's ruling of 2026-10-28 on the proposals of Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose: A Critical Edition (§11). His two statements of method are the model the Footnote to Pearl names (Dead Letters, #1099, post #4, 10 May 2014): "Belief & Technique for Modern Prose", thirty items, written in a letter to Donald Allen in 1958 and printed in Evergreen Review in 1959, and "Essentials of Spontaneous Prose", printed in the Black Mountain Review in 1957 and in Evergreen Review in 1958, whose word for what spontaneous prose does to its reader, "telepathic", the Footnote takes into its title. His works are in copyright: those published before 1964 needed renewal, which is to be checked work by work; the later works run ninety-five years from publication.

- Normalization: The TEI as fetched under original/; text/.txt reduced from the TEI by code: a heading line per textpart ('=== book 1 ===', '=== poem 1 ==='), one line per verse with its line number; the teiHeader, notes and apparatus left in the TEI.
- Scope: Horace's poems entire in Latin, six works in six TEI files at one pinned commit of PerseusDL/canonical-latinLit. The editions differ by work, as Perseus carries them; each is named with its file.
- Why seated: At the operator's ruling of 2026-10-28, on the proposals of Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose: A Critical Edition (§11): the Ars Poetica is the genre's founding text, whose close (the mad poet in the pit, Empedocles in Etna, 453–476) the Footnote to Pearl distributes through its list. The shelf held Longinus (01/06) and no Horace.

Seat 29/03 — Ovid

The poems in Latin, from the Amores to the Ibis; the Fasti queued

- Works:
  - Ovid, Amores, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Epistulae (Heroides), via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Medicamina faciei femineae, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Ars Amatoria, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Remedia amoris, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Metamorphoses, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Tristia, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Epistulae ex Ponto, via Perseus lat2
  - Ovid, Ibis, via Perseus lat2
- Licence: Perseus Digital Library TEI under CC BY-SA 4.0 (the repository's licence); the underlying editions are in the public domain in the United States: Ehwald (Teubner, 1907 and 1889), Magnus (Perthes, 1892), Wheeler (Loeb, 1924; the 1939 printing).
- Verified locus: Amores 1.1.1–2, the elegiac foot stolen by Cupid — 'Arma gravi numero violentaque bella parabam'
- Verified locus: Ars Amatoria 1.1–2, the art taught — 'Siquis in hoc artem populo non novit amandi'
- Verified locus: Metamorphoses 15.871, the sphragis — 'Iamque opus exegi'
- Verified locus: Tristia 2, the defence of the poems — 'carmen et error'
- Lines: 29,175 in 9 text files (9 works)
- Normalization: The TEI as fetched under original/; text/.txt reduced from the TEI by code: a heading line per textpart, one line per verse with its line number; the teiHeader, notes and apparatus left in the TEI.
- Scope: Ovid's works entire in Latin as Perseus carries them, nine TEI files at one pinned commit of PerseusDL/canonical-latinLit. Seated in the pluriform twenty-ninth seating with the arts of poetry: the Ars Amatoria is the ars of the title turned to love, the Amores open on the poet's metre and close on his monument, the Tristia defend the poems that exiled him, and the Metamorphoses end on the poet's survival in his work.
- Queued: The Fasti: the Perseus text is Frazer's Loeb edition (1931), in copyright in the United States until 1 January 2027. QUEUED for that date, or for a public-domain edition of the Latin fetched from a scan whose licence is verified at the file.
- Why seated: At the operator's ruling of 2026-10-28, gathering the twenty-ninth seating as a pluriform bundle of the arts of poetry: Ovid seated entire. The shelf held no Ovid (the one occurrence of the name was the Ovid Press imprint of Pound's Hugh Selwyn Mauberley, 18/01).

- Lines: 239,484 in 64 text files (64 works)
- Normalization: Originals as fetched under original/ (TEI, Wikisource HTML as served with its revision id, Gutenberg text, Aozora XHTML in Shift_JIS, Internet Archive OCR layers and scans). text/.txt derived by code: TEI reduced to lines; Wikisource parser output with navigation, edit links and reference markers dropped (several pages of one work joined under ’=== ===’ headings); Aozora main text with ruby readings kept in □□ after their base; Gutenberg and OCR text with line endings normalized. No text corrected by hand. Drop capitals set as images or styled initials on Wikisource can fall out of the text layer (Darío’s first word reads ‘espués’).
- Scope: Arts of poetry: treatises, prefaces, letters, manifestos and poems about the making of poems, chosen for range — one or more per tradition, from the Nāṭyaśāstra and the Great Preface to the Odes through Mayakovsky, Hagiwara and MacLeish. Copyrighted moderns and contemporary arts of poetry are declared in 29/06 (ars-poetica-wanted).
- Queued: Archibald MacLeish, “Ars Poetica”, Streets in the Moon (Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1926): public domain in the United States; not on English Wikisource, and no scan found this session; Rainer Maria Rilke, Briefe an einen jungen Dichter (Leipzig: Insel, 1929): both Internet Archive copies (the 1932 printing) are access-restricted (lending library), and no other copy was found; Moses ibn Ezra, Kitāb al-muḥāḍara wa-l-mudhākara (the Hebrew poetics in Judaeo-Arabic) and its Hebrew translation by B. Halper, Shirat Yisrael (Leipzig, 1924): no fetchable copy found this session; Zeami, Fūshikaden: no public-domain digital text found (Aozora Bunko and Japanese Wikisource hold none); Ibn Qutayba, al-Shiʿr wa-l-shuʿarāʾ: the Arabic Wikisource transcription is incomplete; Raimon Vidal, Razos de trobar: no fetchable copy found this session; Torquato Tasso, Discorsi dell'arte poetica: not found on Italian Wikisource; Geoffrey of Vinsauf, Poetria nova, and the twelfth- and thirteenth-century Latin arts are seated inside Faral (1924) only as OCR

- Cross-references: already_on_the_shelf: Not seated twice: Plato's Ion, Phaedrus and Republic (plato); Aristotle's Poetics (aristotle); Longinus, On the Sublime (longinus); Horace's Ars Poetica and Epistles (horace, 29/02); Ovid's Ars amatoria, Remedia, Tristia and Ex Ponto (ovid, 29/03); Aristophanes' Frogs (aristophanes); Whitman's 1855 Preface (whitman, LG1855); Blake (blake); Dickinson's manuscripts and her letters to Higginson in the Letters of 1894 (dickinson-mss); Langston Hughes's 'The Negro Artist and the Racial Mountain' in The Nation of 23 June 1926 (langston-hughes); the Futurist and Russian Futurist manifestos (futurism); Dada (dada); Pound's essays and Des Imagistes (pound, pound-ii); Stein (stein); Pessoa (pessoa, pessoa-full); the Russian Formalists (russian-formalism); Mallarmé's Coup de dés and Apollinaire's Calligrammes (visual-poetry); Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose, Make It Human and Sigil's essay in the whole (pearl-and-other-poems; 29/07); beside_eliot: Sigil's 'Tradition and the Individual Seismograph' is seated next to Eliot's 'Tradition and the Individual Talent' by the author's ruling: the essay takes Eliot's historical sense as its tool and turns the poet from recorder into seismograph whose tremors may create the earthquake they register.
- Why seated: Gathered for the next EA-CORPORA deposit at the author's direction ('an extremely pluriform ars poetica bundle … include telepathic prose'; 'take that extremely pluriform further globally, hebrew, sanskrit, korean'), around Belief & Technique for Telepathic Prose (#1715), Jack Feist's art of poetry, so that the archive's own ars poetica, a deeply serious one that contains and enacts the comic, the parodic and the satirical among almost every other genre, stands among the arts it answers.

Wanted: the public-domain entries first, as scans of their first printings; then the moderns as they open, and permission from living authors and estates for the Language, conceptual and contemporary works, which the library would seat beside their predecessors here.

- Why seated: The arts of poetry the twenty-ninth seating could not hold, declared beside the ones it holds (ars-poetica, 29/04; avant-garde-ii, 29/05), at the author's direction to 'go further into language poetry and contemporary ars poetica for wanted' (2026-10-28). Most are in copyright and open on the dates given; eleven are open now and wanted because no copy could be fetched this session. The list is a beginning: each entry names what would be seated, and the shelf grows as the works open or the copies are found.

- Lines: 1,856 in 9 text files (9 works)
- Normalization: P texts are line ranges of the Pearl seat’s machine text, copied with that file’s path and sha256, page-number lines kept as the machine text has them. B texts are the Blogger pages as served, under original/, with text/.txt reduced by code from the post body. The drafts (D1, D2, D3 and W) are the Drive connector’s text exports of the two .docx files the edition collates (its §3), seated at the author’s ruling of 2026-10-28; the exports escape two characters as Markdown does (a backslash before # and *), kept as served, and the .docx files are recorded by Drive id, size and created time. The edition is the deposit body of #1715 as minted. No text corrected: Pearl is the canonical form, not to be altered (the author’s ruling of 2026-10-28), so ‘retrictio s’ and the repeated item stand.
- Scope: The telepathic pieces of Pearl and Other Poems in both their witnesses, with the critical edition: the ars poetica of the archive itself, set at the end of the twenty-ninth seating’s arts of poetry.
- Cross-references: pearl: The whole book is seated at pearl-and-other-poems; these are its telepathic pieces drawn out to stand with the arts of poetry (29/04).; kerouac: Jack Kerouac's 'Belief & Technique for Modern Prose' (1959), the list the Footnote answers, is declared at jack-kerouac (29/01), where it is described and cited by item number and its text is held out.; seismograph: Johannes Sigil's 'Tradition and the Individual Seismograph' (Pearl pp. 96–100) is seated in ars-poetica beside Eliot's essay.; captures: AXN:0A96–0A99.CAPTURE, the four machine readings of 2026-10-28 to which the edition is anchored.

- Why seated: At the author's direction: 'lets gather up an extremely pluriform ars poetica bundle … include telepathic prose.'

- Verified locus: Milindapañha — ‘Milind’
- Lines: 447,145 in 37 text files (37 works)
- Normalization: The original is the repository’s tree at the commit, archived by git (byte-reproducible from the commit and the command recorded). text/ joins each collection’s segment files in natural order of their paths, one line per segment, the segment id kept, the text stripped of edge whitespace. Nothing corrected.
- Scope: The three piṭakas complete as SuttaCentral holds them in root Pali: the four Nikāyas and the Khuddaka books (with the Milindapañha, Nettippakaraṇa and Peṭakopadesa of the Burmese recension), the Vinaya (Suttavibhaṅga, Khandhaka, Parivāra, both Pātimokkhas) and the seven Abhidhamma books. The translations are held out; Sujato’s Dhammapada is at 02/17.
- Cross-references: pali-canon: 02/17 holds the Dhammapada in both layers (root and Sujato’s English); this seat holds the whole root canon, the Dhammapada again inside the Khuddaka Nikāya.
- Why seated: The canon harvest the Dhammapada seat queued (02/17: ‘CANON HARVEST QUEUED’), seated at the author’s direction of 2026-10-28 for the twenty-ninth seating: ‘we need buddhist canon, various traditions, mahayana included.’

Seat 29/11 — The Derge Kangyur

Eight volumes in Tibetan

- Works:
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 1: Vinaya (’dul ba), volume ka: the Vinayavastu begins (Toh 1)
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 33: Prajñāpāramitā (brgyad stong pa): the Aṣṭasāhasrikā (Toh 12)
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 34: Prajñāpāramitā, various (shes rab sna tshogs): the Diamond (Toh 16) and the Heart (Toh 21) among the shorter sūtras
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 46: Sūtra (mdo sde), volume kha: the Lalitavistara (Toh 95)
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 49: Sūtra (mdo sde), volume ca: the Laṅkāvatāra (Toh 107)
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 51: Sūtra (mdo sde), volume ja: the White Lotus of the True Dharma (Toh 113) and the Sukhāvatīvyūha (Toh 115)
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 60: Sūtra (mdo sde), volume ma: the Teaching of Vimalakīrti (Toh 176)
  - Derge Kangyur, volume 103: The catalogue of the Derge Kangyur (dkar chag)
- Licence: Public domain: the repository’s README states, under License, ‘This work is a mechanical reproduction of a Public Domain work, and as such is also in the Public Domain.’
- Verified locus: the Aṣṭasāhasrikā — Tohoku marker {D12} in volume 33
- Verified locus: the Diamond Sūtra — Tohoku marker {D16} in volume 34

How the seats were made

Every seat was fetched in session and hashed into its MANIFEST.sha256, with a source.json recording edition, origin, licence, normalization and the loci verified in the text layer. The builders are under rebuild/corpora/ea-corpora-29/: build29.py (TEI, Wikisource, GRETIL, Gutenberg, Aozora, Internet Archive, Blogger, Drive and extract kinds, on the 27th seating's seat.py), pali29.py, tib29.py, absences29.py and absences29_wanted.py, with the spec generators. Wikisource pages are kept as served, with their revision ids. Large Internet Archive scans are held by reference, with the Archive's md5. The Pali canon is held as a byte-reproducible git archive of the repository tree at its commit. The NonCommercial GRETIL payloads are handled under the payload/record split of EA-CORPORA-02. Declared absences hold no text of the works they name. Terms follow the rules each seat states; they are not legal advice. 11 seats; 196 works; 876,386 lines; 564 files.
